Country Showdown returning to Shuler for exciting weekend

By Tim Keller

The Chronicle-News

RATON – For the fourth consecutive year, the Shuler Theater will pack an excited crowd shoulder-to-shoulder as it presents the Southwest Regional Country Showdown, pitting seven state winners in a talent competition that will send its winner to Nashville's storied Ryman Auditorium for the January national final. And there is no admission to the event.

The 33rd annual Country

Showdown in Nashville will be broadcast nationally, the winner taking home a check for $100,000 and gaining a potent springboard for a national career in country music. Crystal Yates came from North Texas last October to win the Shuler event, then proceeded to take the national prize at the Ryman. Her first single was just released on iTunes; meantime, she was so grateful to Raton and the Shuler Theater that she returned to play a local benefit in May.

Saturday night's free show at the Shuler will feature diverse performers so talented that they've

Arriving in Raton from seven southwestern states, Saturday night's Shuler Theater performers already won their local and state contests to reach the last stop before nationals. Little Britches Rodeo coming to LA County Fairgrounds

By Steve Block
The Chronicle-News

Some kids from families with a strong tradition of horsemanship get up in the saddle just about as soon as they can walk. For those kids, the Purgatoire Little Britches Rodeo will give them the chance to display their rapidly developing Western skills.

All events will be held at the Las Animas County Fairgrounds, located at 2000 N. Linden Ave., and no admission will be charged. The rodeo kicks off at 6 p.m. on Friday, November 17, with a Jackpot Barrel Racing Event. Registration begins at 5 p.m. Call 719-850-0570 or 719-738-6263 for more information.

Little Britches is one of the oldest continuing youth rodeo associations in the world. It's for kids ages 5 to 18, and has young members in 26 states in the U.S. The nonprofit venture works to build sound, healthy minds and bodies for American youth.

Little Britches helps develop character, a sense of responsibility, good sportsmanship and encouragement through competition in the great American sport of rodeo. This weekend's event will be the first Little Britches Rodeo to be held in Trinidad in several years. No alcohol will be served or allowed at this family-friendly event.

Rodeo events begin at noon on Saturday, November 18, and at 10 a.m. on Sunday, November 19. The Las Animas County 4-H Council will have a concession stand at the rodeo. The purpose of Little

El Moro-Hoehne Pipeline Association members honored for their service

By Scott Mastro
Correspondent
The Chronicle-News

After many years of cisterns needing constant filling and wells running dry, a number of Hoehne citizens, among them Littleton Sharp, John Myers, Perry Stokes, Bart Barbata, and Barney Tarabino, decided they needed a pipeline of reliable water, so they formed the El Moro-Hoehne Pipeline Association and in 1961 got their pipeline built, four inches in thickness and 22 miles long.

"It went in fast. Took about a year," rancher and farmer, Tommie Miller, said. He and Roy Morris did a lot of the maintaining of the pipeline, daytime, nighttime, rain, snow, or shine. "Roy did a lot of the digging. He still has a lot of that equipment. He's in Mount Saint Raphael Hospital, so he couldn't make this dedication ceremony. The luncheon and awards ceremony was held at Peak Steakhouse in the Holiday Inn.

"The ditch got backhoed a foot at a time," said Former Trinidad State Administrative Vice President, John Tarabino. "We got a $100,000 loan from Farmer's Home Association. Bill Chandler was the FHA guy that made it happen. They used to have an office in Trinidad, on Second Street. Moroccan Engineering put it in."

"It's lain in the ground four feet deep," Tommy added.

The pipeline runs from Big R all the way to Tommy Miller's place, three miles past Hoehne School.

Among those present to be honored for their lifelong work were John Tarabino, Ralph Sacco and his wife, Ann, Albert Blasi and his wife, Phyllis, Tommy Miller, and Roy Morris in absentia.

Albert Blasi said, "The real tipping point was Hoehne School. Their well kept running dry. That's what made us realize we needed a pipeline. It's Trinidad water, so we get it from North Lake up Highway 12, just like they do. John Myers was president of the school board."

Also present were current board president, David Philpott and pipeline accountant, Kelli Van Matre of Terra Firma Recycling and The Water Station at the north end of Nevada Avenue. Kelli is a University of Colorado at Colorado Springs Business graduate.

FALL FESTIVAL TOMORROW

Early Learning Center to host Open House

By Steve Block
 The Chronicle-News

Trinidad's Early Learning Center located at 1225 Rosita Ave. was recently a rated as a three-star Qualistar facility. The Center, a part of the South Central Council of Governments (SCCOG), will host a Fall Festival Open House Celebration from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. on Wednesday, October 15.

Deb Hartman, director of the center, said its staff is excited to invite the public to come on down and have a look at the high-quality learning environment that's available there and get to know the teachers. Refreshments will be served. Call the center at 719-845-0568 for more information.

Qualistar Colorado is now in its 10th year of operation and offers a variety of assessment options for childcare programs to participate in. More information is available at the website: www.qualistar.org. More than 25,000 children are enrolled in early childhood education programs that have earned the rigorous Qualistar Rating. The four-star quality rating identifies the strengths of early childhood education programs and provides them with detailed plans for how they can improve the quality of care they provide. Currently, 474 programs are rated, which includes 416 centers and 58 family childcare homes.

"We just barely missed getting that four-star rating, but a three-star rating is very good according to the state standards," Hartman said. "This is the second time we've achieved a three-star rating. With the passage of House Bill 13-1299, that gave us some funding. Our local Department of Human Services administers that funding. Then our local council gave us a grant to make improvements, and that got us ready to go for this rating, because it's very expensive."

Hartman said the Qualistar rating system looks at the environment of the classroom, the staff's qualifications, supplies and parental involvement in childcare programs. Getting the three-star rating qualifies the center for federal grant funding that Colorado has applied for.

"Qualistar rated centers can qualify for that funding, to help implement programs for preschool. So it's opened up more opportunities for us. The state is working hard to get all childcare facilities Qualistar rated, but that's a feat in itself."

Some childcare facilities don't have a curriculum or much parent involvement. They function more like daycare centers, she said, so it's harder for them to meet the Qualistar standards.

The center is a state-licensed facility for kids ages one to ten. It offers infant toddler programs, preschool programs for kids in the Trinidad and Hoehne school districts, a nutrition program, outdoor playtime for games and sports and after school programs. Its staff works with parents to develop individual activities that they can enjoy with their kids.

It offers a planned curriculum with a strong emphasis on language skills, leadership and developmentally appropriate activities. It features planned activities tailored to meet each child's needs, which are posted at all times to inform parents. Its certified and experienced staff has been carefully selected to meet the needs of young children. A meaningful curriculum with learning centers and motivational activities help build important foundations for future reading skills and other academic pursuits. More information is available on the website: scog.net/Early_Learning.html.

The center also has programs for families of all income levels to help parents learn how to assist in their children's classroom learning and to help with special projects. The programs help parents learn about their children's growth and development, and offers children of different ages the chance to learn together in the same facility. Kids enrolled in the Colorado Child Care Assistance Program are welcome at the center. Some holiday care is available at the center, which features year round programs with plenty of family fun and daily communications between parents and teachers.

Hartman said the center's staff wants to welcome the community to come out and join them in the upcoming celebration, and to remind them that the early years are learning years.

"We're just going to have like a re-open house, like our grand opening a while back," she said. "It's an ongoing process of educating the public about what we do and some of the improvements we've made. Because it's working, and the proof is in the pudding."

Crystal Yates won last year's Southwest Regional Country Showdown at Raton's Shuler Theater, propelling her to the national championship at Nashville's storied Ryman Auditorium where she won the $100,000 first place award. Grateful to Raton and the Shuler, she returned to perform a local benefit at the Shuler in May.

gas, NV, representing Arizona, along with Jana Lee Cox from Oklahoma, Matt Coleman from Kansas, and Tyler Hammond from Dallas. The Missouri and South Texas finals were held last weekend; their winners, too, will each travel to Raton to sing two songs to a full house at the Shuler. Last year's audience included fans from 16 states plus a couple from Manchester, England.

Sitting amidst the audience will be four music-industry professionals who will judge the acts and name the winner. The contest does not reveal the judges until after the event ends, but they've included performers, agents, talent scouts, and music media professionals.

Part of the fun is listening to the excited chatter of the crowd after the last performance while the judges tabulate their scores. All the acts are so good that there's never a consensus. Ask four people and you're likely to get four conflicting predictions of who will win.

Local favorite Colfax Reunion opens the show at 6:30 p.m., then accompanies many of the contestant acts in their short sets. Colfax Reunion plays a short closing set at the end while the judges confer and decide on a winner.

Saturday night's winning performer will travel to Nashville in January to represent the southwest for the national prize, joining the four other winning regional acts from the Midwest, Southeast, Northeast and Northwest. Last year's win by Crystal Yates at both famous theaters—the Shuler and the Ryman—underscores the stakes, and the level of talent converging on Raton Saturday night.

Shuler Theater doors open at 6 p.m. Saturday night. There is no charge for the event, and no tickets. Seating is available on a first come basis. Colfax Reunion opens the show at 6:30 p.m. The Country Showdown performances begin at 7 p.m.. Additional information is available at 800-791-8028 and 615-321-5130. The Shuler Theater is located at 131 N. 2nd St. in downtown Raton, (575) 445-4746.

Little Britches Rodeo coming to LA County

Britches Rodeo is to provide a truly western sport under standardized and approved rules of fair competition. Livestock tend to be unpredictable critters, so the young competitors are judged on their ability to manage and control the speed and movement of horses and cattle. Their ability to handle a twirling rope, remember a weaving pattern and dismount from a thundering horse is a tribute to the riders' countless hours of practice at an early age.

Brute strength, agility and quick thinking are often the key factors in determining a winning ride. Rodeo competition is governed by a set of rules that ensure fairness for each contestant.

Rodeo events will include bull riding, flag races, goat tying, trail course, roping, pole racing and bareback and saddle bronc riding. A full list of the events is included below:

Long hours of practice are required for the young riders to master their skills before even entering the rodeo arena. They're also responsible for animal care and equipment maintenance. Clearly, this is not a once-a-week activity, but a serious sport, and a fun and exciting commitment for an entire family. The courage, stamina and competitive spirit of the young rodeo riders will be on full and glorious display at the Purgatoire Little Britches Rodeo this special November weekend in Trinidad.

Anyone who would like to help sponsor the rodeo can call either of the phone numbers listed above.
