

OVER THE PASS

"I don't have any one change. I'm pretty content. I'm a happy person."

– Camilla Campbell, owner, Curly's Bead Emporium (Trinidad)

"I'm doing it. I invent things. It's going to help people. The change? Making sure this happens. I came from LA to Raton. Why? Because it called me. But they won't change money in banks here, so I'm going back."

– Petar Lazarevic, Australia (Raton)

Question of the Week:

"What's one change you'd like to make in your life?"

Photos by Tim Keller / The Chronicle-News

"I wouldn't change anything in my life because if I'd changed, I wouldn't be doing what I'm doing now. I wouldn't be in scouting. I wouldn't have met my boyfriend. We just celebrated our five-year anniversary. He's in Alaska."

– Ashley Vanspeybroeck, environmental educator, Moline, Illinois (Raton)

"I'd like to go back to school and get a GED."

– Maria De Los Santos, technician, Elite Restoration, Denver (Trinidad)

"Two words: 'Finish well.' Constant improvement, that's my focus."

– Gary Elsberry, dentist (Trinidad)

"I wish there were more hours in me. There's not enough day left in me. I need more time and I need more of me, to do all the things I want to do. I wish I was 20 years younger!"

– Marsha "Mimi" Moore, family nurse practitioner (Raton)

AREA HUNTING TAGS

List of leftover licenses for sale Aug. 5 available now

Colorado Parks and Wildlife
Special to The Chronicle-News

DENVER – Hunters seeking tags for either bucks or bulls, or simply a cow elk for the freezer, can look forward to an ample number of leftover big-game licenses for the 2014 seasons.

Colorado Parks and Wildlife has approximately 6,000 deer, 30,000 elk, 5,000 pronghorn and 1,800 bear licenses available for the fall hunting seasons. Leftover licenses are surplus licenses that went unsold during the limited drawing.

For the first time ever, both leftover and over-the-counter (OTC) licenses go on sale the same day. In addition, hunters may purchase licenses online without having to wait an additional day as in years past.

All leftover and OTC licenses go on sale Aug. 5 at 9 a.m. Mountain Standard Time. Licenses may be purchased at statewide license agents, Colorado Parks and Wildlife service centers, online or by calling 1-800-244-5613. In addition to a current and valid photo ID, proof of residency and social security number, anyone buying a license must have a Hunter Education card, unless the hunter was born before Jan. 1, 1949. Bring this card with you for in-person sales.

A list of available leftover licenses may be accessed at <http://cpw.state.co.us/thingstodo/Pages/hunt.aspx>. The leftover list updates every 15 minutes once the sales process begins Aug. 5.

Don't miss your chance to hunt Colorado this fall. For more information about big-game hunting in Colorado and license availability go to <http://cpw.state.co.us/thingstodo/Pages/BigGame.aspx>.
