Edward Jones honors 'Students of the Month'

Raleigh Jackson

Anna Avalos

Kirsten Harding

Kirsten Harding, a senior at Trinidad High School, has been named the Edward Jones Service Student of the Month for January. She accepts the award from Edward Jones Financial Advisor Mel Williamson. Standing next to her are her parents, Denise and Jerry Vitiello. At left are THS Assistant Principal Joe DeAngelis, THS Principal Jennifer Mason and Edward Jones Financial Advisor Lori Hoffman. Kirsten said her favorite subject is psychology because "it's really interesting to learn about why people are the way they are." She enjoys reading a lot, hanging out with her friends and going to movies, especially the scary kind. Concerning her service activities, Kirsten said she has most enjoyed volunteering at the Trinidad Blues Festival because "it really benefits the community and helps bring people to Trinidad. We're small, but we have a lot to offer." Kirsten credits her parents for teaching her work ethics and their best advice to her has been to take responsibility for her actions.

Hoehne's Brandon Tortorelli earns Boettcher scholarship

Special to The Chronicle-News

Tim Schultz, President and Executive Director of the Boettcher Foundation, is pleased to announce that Brandon Tortorelli from Hoehne High School has been selected as a 2010 Boettcher Foundation Scholarship recipient.

Brandon is planning on accepting the scholarship and using it to attend the Colorado School of Mines, where he will major in biochemical engineering.

Each year, the Boettcher Foundation grants 40 merit-based scholarships to superior young persons from Colorado high schools. Begun in 1952 as a statewide competition recognizing scholarship, leadership and achievement in young men and women, the Boettcher Scholarship program has sought to reward outstanding high school seniors who demonstrate the potential to make significant contributions to Colorado.

Since the program's inception, the Foundation has awarded almost 2,200 scholarships. Today, the Boettcher Foundation provides approximately $3 million in scholarship support annually, making the program one of the largest merit-based scholarship programs in the nation.

These awards cover virtually all college expenses for recipients who choose to further their education in their home state of Colorado. The scholarships consist of full tuition, fees, a book allowance and an annual stipend for living expenses. The scholarships are granted for eight semesters at either a public or private four-year college or university within the state as long as the Scholar maintains a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.0.

Selection is strictly

"merit-based," allowing all seniors in Colorado to compete based upon their individual accomplishments. This year's scholarship winners were selected from over 1,300 qualified applicants on the basis of their superior academic ability, demonstrated service ethic, outstanding character and their participation in both school and community activities. To be eligible for one of these prestigious awards, students must rank among the top 5 percent of their graduating class, have a combined score of at least 1200 on the Critical

Reading and Math sections of the SAT or a composite ACT score of at least 27, be a U.S. citizen or permanent resident and a Colorado resident for their junior and senior years of high school.

The Trustees of the Boettcher Foundation are: Larry Allen, M.D., Pamela D. Beardsley, M. Ann Penny, Theodore F. Schlegel, M.D., Edward D. White III, Thomas Williams and Donald Woods.

Raton High culinary students add catering

By TIM KELLER
The Chronicle-News

Raton High School's culinary arts classes have developed into a professional catering service this year. Under the direction of teacher Myra Baird, who came to the school exactly one year ago, the Tiger Culinary Students have learned to offer a complete package of catering services: they do the shopping, preparation, decorating, set-up, service, and clean-up.

Thirteen juniors and seniors participate in the Introduction to Culinary Arts course, with four others in Advanced Culinary Arts. Together, they've been providing the concession foods for sports events, where their bowl of chili has developed an enthusiastic following. The students catered last year's prom and the annual Raton Public Schools art show at International Bank in downtown Raton. They've catered for meetings at Raton High School and the High Plains Regional Education Cooperative (REC).

"We're treating it as a restaurant concept," says Baird. "From here, the students should have no trouble moving straight into work in a restaurant, whether in the kitchen or serving." Along with safety and food preparation techniques, the students learn the importance of dressing the part.

Students enrolled in the Intro course include juniors Helen Baird, Jasmine Earle, Elisha Martinez, Christina Quintana, and Cassandra Sanchez, as well as seniors Jessica Fiorino, Kyle Fitzpatrick, Cheyenne Garrett, Rebeka Henson, Bubba Martinez, Tristan Martinez, Mallorie Salazar, and Christopher Simpson. The advanced students are Felisha Garcia, Sarah Marchiondo, Stevi Salazar, and Carlos Vigil.

Marchiondo, Henson, and Stevi Salazar are earning dual credit by completing the course requirements for Luna Community College's Culinary Concepts and Mathematics course.

Senior Carlos Vigil is finishing his third year of culinary courses at RHS. "I like to cook," he says. "I want to go to college to study culinary arts." After graduation in May, he hopes to attend either the Art Institute in San Francisco - a leading culinary school, Vigil

Raton High School's culinary arts students visited Executive Chef Jake Pilley, top center, at the St. James Hotel in Cimarron last week says - or Johnson and Wales University in Denver.

Johnson and Wales sent a representative to speak with all the RHS culinary students last week. The school offers a variety of degree programs in business, hospitality, technology, and the culinary arts, with campuses in Denver, Miami, Charlotte, and Providence.

Baird used proceeds of the Tiger Culinary Students' catering jobs to take the group to Cimarron last week, where they were hosted by the St. James Hotel's Executive Chef Jake Pilley, who cooked for the group. Students filed into the kitchen to watch Pilley - and assist - as he prepared their meals. "He was really nice to us," Vigil remarked. "We also got to look at his professional portfolio, which was really impressive."

Vigil is also a fan of his teacher, Myra Baird. "She's a really good teacher. She studied cooking and nutrition in college. She really knows what she's doing."

Baird is looking ahead. She wants to send a three-student team to statewide FCCLA cooking competitions, and to train someone to develop a professional portfolio for the group, with menus and photos.

She's proud of what the students have accomplished. "I'm really picky," she says. "When we have a job to do, we get it done. Everybody just loves what the students do." The students are obviously proud, too. Some, though, smile and admit that they're in it mainly for the food.

Congratulations to Kim on their Class 1A State Championship! Way to go Lady Mustangs!
